A PRESENTMENT BY THE GRAND JURY. NEED OF AN EXHAUSTIVE INVESTIGATION OF THE FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

The July Grand Jury, of which Sylvester W. Comstock was foreman, and F. W. Rhinelander secretary, was discharged vesterday by Judge Gildersleeve. Charles S. Smith, Benjamin H. Field and other members of the jury desired to make a fuller examination of the affairs of the Controller's office, but Judge Gildersleeve was unwilling to extend the term of the jury, as much confusion might arise from such an unusual course of procedure. Judge Gildersleeve, in discharging the jurors, complimented them on the carnestness and industry tend the term of the jury, as much confusion might arise from such an unusual course of procedure. Judge Gildersleeve, in discharging the jurors, complimented them on the carnestness and industry which they had shown, and suggested that a future grand jury might be able to take up the work of investigation where they had left it. Before they were discharged, the Grand Jury handed to the Judge the following presentment:

Referring to the instructions of your Honor regarding the coupon frauds, we have the honor to say that the Fourta National Bank consented to appoint an expert as proposed by this jury, but they regret to state that the other banks declined to accede to our request. This jury entertains the firm conviction that the public interest requires a thorough examination of the Controller's office by impartial and skilled accountants under the assistance of the summary powers vested in a Grand Jury, and that it should be conducted by parties usconnected with any department of the city government. The limited time remaining at the disposal of this Grand Jury precluded the possibility of any personal and exhaustive examination of the books and methods of the Controller's office, but they have examined some parties formerly and at present officially connected with the Department. They have arrived at the following conclusions:

First—That if the payments of the city coupons had been made by a responsible bank or trust company, as was formerly the practice, no loss could have accound to the city.

Second—That if the payments for coupons had been made by the City Chamberlain, as formerly, the city would have been protected from loss by the large bond of the Camberlain, which the jury believe would apply to cases like the Carroli frauds.

Third—This Grand Jury are of the opinion that a law shound be passed prohibiting the issue of the city's indebteduces other than in a registered from, and they recommend the conversion of all outstanding coupon bronds into registered spocs.

Fourth—From the testimony before th clerks and been used for dishonest purposes. Mr. Green says:

These bends, of the number and amount of which I have neitner memorandum nor memory, had been printed before I came into the office of Controller; but few had been signed by my predecessor, though a lac number of the new was printed on each of a sneet of coupons at the foot of each bond. It would not have been beat to have these bonds issued, as they would have borne the name of one Controller as signing the bonds and that of another Controller on the coupons—and perhaps for other reasons that will readily occur. I deemed it a prudent precaution to put these mecomplete instruments entirely beyond the power of being misenevously used, and amid the turmoil of that evental time I meditated the best mode of doing so. I requested three of the most responsible employes of the effice, Messrs. Earle, Storrs and Cady, to count the bonds and that a memorandum of the particulars of them be made. I personally accompanied these geatlemen to the basement of the new Court House, and saw the bonds to which I aliade ourned with fire.

In corroboration of the statement of Mr. Green, an affidavit was submitted signed by Artemus S. Cady, elerk of arrears, Richard A. Storrs, deputy controller, and Abraham D. Earle, late county auditor. They state that they saw bonds destroyed at various time by fire in the boiler furnace in the basement of the new Court House, that these bonds had been printed from plates made by the American Bank Note Company, and were destroyed at the times mentioned:

On November 12, 1872—499 bonds of $1,000 cach; 1,905 bonds of the cuty of New York of $1,000 cach, not, 1,000 book bonds, city of New York of $1,000 cach, not, 1,000 book bonds, city of New York, 1,000 cach, Nos. 1 to 500; 301 conds, city of New York, 1,000 cach, not, 1,000 book bonds, city of New York, 1,000 cach, Nos. 3,943 to 4,252; 1,241 bonds, county of $500 cach, Nos. 3,717 to 4,300, partly executed, with the signature of kichard B. Connolly, Controller, the same baying been previou reen says:

An additional certificate by Messrs, Storrs and Cady appended to the affidavit is as follows:

The above-mentioned incomplete certificate of stocks and bonds with all the coupons on caon attached were so burned and completely destroyed, and the reason for their destruction was this: The certificates of stock and bonds were printed for the purpose of issue as a portion of a lean of $15,000,000 negotiated by Richard B. Connelly, Controller of the city of New-York, with Angust Beimont & Co., as agents and representative of A. M. Rothsenild & Sons, of London, in and about the year 1871, and said certificates of stock and bonds were engraved and printed with a coupons attached bearing the fac-simile signature of the said Andrew H. Green naving been appointed Controller in the place of the said Connolly, would not sign the said certificates of stock and bonds with the coupons attached upon waite coupons attached upon which coupons the fac-simile of the signature of said Connolly was printed. For this reason the said Andrew H. Green ordered and directed mat the said certificates of stock and bonds should be burned and effectually destroyed at the times and place above stated. The said certificates of stock and bonds, after their delivery to the Finance Department by the Americae Bank Note Company, were careplace above stated. The suid certificates of stock and bonds, after their delivery to the Finance Department by the American Bank Note Company, were deretully kept to an iron safe in the Controller's office until they were buried and destroyed. Other certificates of stock and bonds were printed by the said American Bank Note Company in the piace of those destroyed, having the fac-simile signature of Andrew H. Green, Controller, upon the compons which were attached thereto printed thereon. They were duly signed by the said Green as Controller, and issued and delivered to said August Belmont & Co. at sundry times thereafter when so completely executed.

THE BROGAN-MCMANUS QUARREL. BROGAN ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT-HE THREATENS TO SUE M'MANUS FOR LIBEL.

To sue M'Manus for Libel.

The difficulty in the HIId Assembly District Republican meeting on Thursday uight led to the arrest yesterday of Barnard F. Brogan and William E. Morris for assault on Charles B. McManus and for using improper language. The prisoners were paroled by Justice Duffy until Monday, when the examination will take place.

The difficulty was the cause of a good deal of talk among politicians. Brogan, who was charged by McManus with having been indicted for burglary, said that while the name was the same, yet he was not the man. He declared that he would have McManus arrested for malicious libel. But it could not be learned that he took any steps in that direction further than to make the threat.

McManus arrested for maticious tibel. But it could not be learned that he took any steps in that direction further than to make the threat.

A Judge of the City Court said that copies of the two indictments against Barnard F. Brogan for burglary were laid before them when Brogan was appointed a court attendant. They heard Brogan's explanation to the effect that he was not the Brogan who was indicted, and after making some further inquiries they accepted that explanation as correct. McManus said that he was prepared to prove that Brogan was the man who was twice indicted for burglary and he would be only too glad of the opportunity to prove it. He had not heard of Brogan's threat to bring a sait for maticious libel and he said that no such suit would ever be brought, as he was prepared with abundant evidence to sustain his case. McManus was much incensed against Commissioner Taintor for the part he took in the trouble.

A well-known Republican said that he did not know whether or not Brogan was the man who was indicted, but he had known him for three or four years and he had behaved himself and opposed ruffiguism in politics. He was sorry, therefore, to see him commit the assault on McManus. He sid not think, however, that any arrest for libel would follow the matter, but he thought the judges of the Marine Court owed it to the public to establish the fact whether or not their Court officer was an indicted burglar.

A meeting of the grain trade of the Produce Exchange will be held on Monday at 12:30 p.m. to consider the advisability of adopting a rule to prevent trading in futures with a money contribution added to or deducted from the contract note. It is interred that some of the brokers of the Exchange bave been in the habit of increasing their earnmass by not having such a protective rule for their customers. Wheat may be offered at $1.16% a bushel, and an order may be in the pocket of a broker net to give more than that. At the same time the broker may be able to get it for one-inteenth of a cent a bushel less, but instead he says: "I'll give $1.16% less $5;" which means that he will give that price for 8,000 bushels less $5, which is equal to $1.16.5-16 a bushel. But his customer pays $1.16% leaving the extra money in the broker's pocket.

RUINED BY HIS WIFE AND HER LOVER. Axel F. Kromluide, at one time a wealthy merchant in Christianseud, Sweden, married in Copenhagen in February, 1882, but his wife soon acquired an affection for a cierk. The faithless wife, and the faithless clerk, by means of systematic roobery drove Mr. Kromluide into bankrupicy, and, leaving him pennices, the couple cloped. Mr.

keying him pennices, the couple eloped. Mr. Kromiuide, almost heartbroken, with the assistance of some friends in Sweden, then came to this coupling, arriving here on the steamsing Geiser, on February 15. His money was soon spent; his right arm became paralyzed and yesterday he was sent to Ward's Island Hospital to be cared for until he can be returned to Sweden.

RESCUED BY CAPTAIN SAUNDERS. John Siebert, a young German bar-tender, of No. 173 East Eignty-seventh-st., went to bathe yesterday in Eugene Jerolamon's bath at the foot of East Eighty-muth-st. ne got in deep water, and, being unable to swim, he was in danger of drowning. Captain John Saunders, of the Twenty-third Precinct Police, was bathing there at the time and he went to the German's assistance, when Siebert caught him about the neck and dragged him down into the water. A struggle ensued, while the proprietor of the bath procured a float and paddled out to help Captain Saunders. Siebert was rescued with difficulty, but Captain Saunders received only some soratches on his hands while trying to keep the young man afloat.

MR. PARSONS LIKELY TO RESIGN.

THE CONTROVERSY OVER CUTTING TREES. MR. CRIMMINS DEFENDS MR. PARSONS-THE TREES WELL WORTH PRESERVING.

WELL WORTH PRESERVING.

The controversy between Samuel Parsons, jr., the Superintendent of Planting, and the Park Commissioners relative to the action of Superintendent Jones in cutting down two trees to "open a vista" behind the Spa, will probably lead to the resignation of Mr. Parsons and the precipitation upon the Park Commissioners for decision of the question whether or not the position of Superintendent of Planting is anything more than a barren ideality. Commissioner Olliffe, in a conversation with a Tribunal Commissioner of the Board as virtually a resignation of his office and Commissioner Wales intimated that since the letter had been given to the public through the press he would advise that action be taken on it, although he had at first advised agamst it. John D. Crimmins, who moved the appointment of Mr. Parsons, takes a different view of the case from the others of the Commissioners. To a Tribune reporter he said yesterday:

"Mr. Parsons was appointed to his position be-

sioners. To a TRIBUNE reporter he said yearly and ay:

"Mr. Parsons was appointed to his position because he was the most efficient and capable man for the place that we could find. He is eminent in his profession, and it is of great importance that his knowledge and judgment should be followed in dealing with the trees in our parks. I am told by him, and I have no reason to doubt his word, that the trees cut down by the order of Superintendent Jones were beautiful that there is Likow that there was no ment should be followed in dealing with the trees in our parks. I am told by him, and I have no reason to doubt his word, that the trees cut down by the order of Superintendent Jones were beautiful and healthy trees. I know that there was no good reason for opening so wide a vista in the rear of the Spa as was done. To see the building from the drive certainly does not add to the beauty of the Park. It is not handsome, and was not designed to be looked at from the side now exposed to view. Whether Mr. Jones got an order from the Commissioners or not, it was a mistaks."

"Do you look upon Mr. Parsons's letter as a resignation, Mr. Crimmins!" asked the reporter.

"Certainly not. The matter has been dropped, and although I think Mr. Parsons right, I hope it will not come up again."

Mr. Parsons has not yet got over his annoyance at Mr. Jones's action was more wilful than might be supposed. "Mr. Jones's action was more wilful than might be supposed." Mr. Jones's sudment to remove some trees at the rear and north of the Mineral Springs. I objected on the ground that it would tend to expose too much of a building that these trees were evidently intended to shut out. I told him I preferred in such a position to see the trees rather than the building. Mr. Jones the next day gave me a rough diagram eastinctly marking the position of the trees he proposed to remove, and asked me if I would not consent to cut them down. Not remembering exactly the position of the trees, I told him I would look at them and let him know. I did look at them and let him know. I did look at them and let him know. I did look at them and let him know. I did look at them and let him know. I did look at the mand let him know. I did look at the trees that day, and found them well worth preserving. I also saw that their removal would expose the entire side of the building to the view of the drive. Next morning Mr. Jones again asked me about cutting down the trees. I told him I would not consent to it. I further said that I should feel it my dury to upon I wrote the letter of protest to the Board that has been published."

"Were the trees in question especially fine ones?"

"They were. One of them especially was a thrifty American elm of a particularly umbrageous character; and another was a lofty Norway spruce in an unusually healthy condition."

"How about your not attending the meeting of the Board at which your protest was read."

"At the suggestion of one of the Commissioners I remained in the Park attending to my regular duties."

What answer have you received ?" "None whatever. I inquired next morning of the messenger on his arrival at my office at the Arsenal if there were any letter for me and he said there was not."
"What do you intend to do about it?"

What do you intend to do about it ?" "Well, unless my judgment controls in my de-partment, it will be my duty in justice to the public to resign."

It was suggested by one familiar with the history of Central Park that the purpose in cutting down the trees was to open a vista to the Spa rather than from the Spa for advertising purposes. The vista that the Spa was expected to command is the vista over "the Green," and the clump of frees in the rear was purposely placed there to shut it out from the drive.

over 'the Green,' and the clump of frees in the rear was purposely placed there to shut it out from the drive.

Superintendent Jones was seen last night by a Tribung reporter at his home, No. 106 East Seventy-first-st. He said that the question at issue concerning the cutting of the trees in the rear of the Spa was one between Mr. Parsons and the Commissioners. It involved the jurisdiction and rights of the Superintendent of Planting, the Superintending Gardener, Mr. Fischer, and himself, and the Commissioners having expressed themselves on the question, it would be extremely indelicate in him to do so. He added that the plan for opening the vista from the Spa to the Lake originated with one of the Commissioners and had the sanction of Commissioner Oliffe, and that in removing the trees he had loolowed the suggestions of Superintending Gardener Fischer, in which his own judgment and led him to concur. The plan was not only to open the way by covering the trees, which formed a sort of gully, and did not add to the beauty of the landscape, but to plant the spot with suruborry and improve the scene according to the ideas of correct landscape gardening. He did not admit that the trees were specially valuable where they stood, the elim being notating more than a seedling of a few years' growth which had no business where it stood anyhow, and said that the space was more valuable than the trees at best. The trees were specially valuable where they stood the reason of the search of growth which had no business where it stood anyhow, and said that the trees was more valuable than the trees at best. The trees were specially valuable had no business where it stood anyhow, and said that the space was more valuable than the trees at best. The trees were specially valuable had no business more transmitted in the trees at best. The trees were specially valuable had no such that the space was more valuable than the trees at best. The trees were specially valuable had no such that the space was more valuable than the trees at best. The three superintendents had been getting along pleasantly enough without raising an issue of their respective powers, and he was surprised when Mr. Parsons set himself up and claimed so much against so many. As for himself he did not see that he was a factor in the controversy.

INSURANCE NEWS AND INCIDENTS. Marine underwriting for the last seven months has proven, on the whole, rather unprofitable. States doing business in New-York had a somewhat easier experience, but attil were compelled to part with 70 per cent of their premium receipts for marine and inland loss a. The strictly marine insurance companies suffered in about the same proportion. When the usual percentage for management expenses is added to these loss ratios it is obvious that the margin for profit is materially reduced. During the six months ending June 30, 1883, the forty-eight American fire-marine companies reporting to the New-York Insurance Department received $2,298,000 in premiums, against $5,290,000 during the last six months of 1882. The sales of insurance stocks for the week ending yesterday have been as follows:
Farragut, 1182; Pacific, 17012; Sterling, 60; American, 150; Mechanics and Traders', 120; Empire City, 80; Hamilton, 115; Sun Mutual, 53; Hanover, 13712; Howard, 7012.

MORE BUILDING EXAMINERS NEEDED. MORE BUILDING EXAMINERS NEEDED.

The Fire Commissioners yesterday passed a resolution requesting the counsel to the Corporation to give an opinion regarding the amount of money which can be appropriated for salaries in the Bureau of Buildings. Section 1 of chapter 521 of the laws of 1880 limited the annual expense for salaries in the Bureau to $536.000, but the act known as the New-York City Consolidation act of 1882, count in force coulture as mantion of such limitaas the New-York City Consolidation act of 1882, now in force, contains no mention of such limitation. It has been represented to the Commissioners that under the Consolidation act the Board of Estimate and Apportionment can increase the amount to be expended for salaries in the Bureau. Inspector Esterbrook has complained that the number of examiners in the Bureau (eighteen) is too small. They are obliged to watch the construction of all new buildings in order to see that the specifications approved by the inspectors are compiled with, and they must make examinations of all old buildings in which alterations are to be made. It is also their duty to investigate all complaints concerning the safety of buildings in the city, and to make recommendations make examinations of all old buildings in which alterations are to be made. It is also their duty to buildings in the city, and to make recommendations regarding the construction of fire-escapes, etc., and to examine all the buildings in their districts often enough to discover if any are unsafe. The salary of an examiner is $900 a vear.

The Commissioners said that they would apply to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for an additional appropriation for salaries in the Bureau of Buildings if the Corperation Counsel thought such an appropriation could be made legally. They thought the interests of the city demanded an increase of force in the Bureau. The number of examiners ought to be increased so that Inspector Esterbrook might have men detailed for special work, such as the examination of hotels, schools and places of amusement. In order to secure the services of competent men for the work, the Commissioners thought it might be advisable to make some of the salaries larger than those of the present examiners.

RAPHAEL'S MADONNA AT THE MUSEUM.

During the present season the number of persons who visit the Metropolitan Museum of Art is large. The Madonna of the Candelabra is always surrounded by a crowd. A Tribune reporter asked General Di Cesnola whether the fate of the picture was yet declosed. "No." he answered, "Mr. Butler Johnstone returned to England some time ago, and I prevailed upon him to allow it to remain at least until the close of the present half-y-arly exhibition. I received a few days ago a letter from an English gentleman who has travelled in this country, Mr. Frederick Goodhart, who writes to me that as he understands Mr. Butler Johnstone will ake $75,000 for it, he will, in remembrance of the presant visit he made to America, give $25,000 toward its purchase if two American gentlemen will do likewise. I hope that two such patriots will be found." RAPHAEL'S MADONNA AT THE MUSEUM.
